CASCADING COPPER

A variation on the popular apron-front sink loved in the kitchen, the Palisades lavatory basin adapts the unique look to the bath. Unlike any copper sink before it, Palisades' contemporary lines and timeless texture culminate in a five inch apron rounded front. The soft, curved edges and eye-catching, exposed apron front highlight the true beauty of the sink's rich, textural details. The continuous cascade of copper reveals the thousands of hits of an artisan's hammer, providing an extra visual punch to the entire counter area.

Handcrafted of recycled copper, Palisades is available in Antique and Brushed Nickel finishes. Outside dimensions measure 20" x 17" x 5".

Each Native Trails sink is crafted by artisans in Central Mexico with the techniques and tools handed down through generations. These hand-hammered beauties are made from recycled telephone wire and copper tubing, salvaged and then melted down into new sheets of copper ready for their second life as Native Trails sinks.

Native Trails is an industry leader in the production of artisan crafted sinks and today is featured in over 1100 showrooms in the US and Canada. Palisades will be available in June. For additional information, please visit www.nativetrails.net.
